

Group Presentation Rubric

Total: 15 marks. Each group member receives the same mark.

28–30 minutes, including discussion. Suggested breakdown: 12 minutes explaining the paper, 2 for audience reflection, 10 for discussion, and 4 for synthesis. Adjust as needed while preserving discussion time.

Presentation: 10 marks

Criterion	Marks	Preparation guidance
Understanding	4	Explain the problem, main contribution, and assumptions accurately.
Clarity and selection	3	Focus on key ideas. Define terms and use readable slides or examples.
Evidence and limitations	3	Explain what supports the claims and where the results may not apply.

Discussion facilitation: 5 marks

Criterion	Marks	Preparation guidance
Quality of questions	2	Prepare between 1 and 3 substantive questions for class discussion.
Class engagement	2	Guide the discussion, respond to classmates, and ask follow-ups. Try your best to get people involved. ¹
Scribed notes	1	Record the presentation and discussion in Markdown for sharing with the class.

Deliverables:

- Email the prof your slides (pdf format) before class begins. You may present from your laptop (recommended) or run your pdf slides from the prof's machine.
- Show up to class on time, organized, and ready to present.
- After the presentation (by Monday-after-class at the latest), email markdown notes to prof. Simple notes are fine (see the Week 1 example), and emailing your notes directly after presenting is perfectly acceptable.

Group roles: Divide speaking responsibilities as you choose; not everyone must speak. All members receive the same mark and are expected to contribute equally to preparation.

¹Engagement marks reflect how you support discussion, not how many classmates speak. Getting the audience involved is one of the hardest parts of public speaking and I will take this into account when marking.
